

Advocacy and growth in rural and remote early childhood education

All children have the right to education, yet research suggests they don't have equal access to quality early years services, particularly in remote and rural areas. In this presentation, while aiming to inspire action, Emma Cross shares her research and experiences as a practitioner and advocate in the Early Childhood Sector. She reflects and questions, how can we all act within our realm of influence to ensure quality outcomes for children, families, and communities.
