

Philanthropy: The opportunity, the reality and the cautionary tales

Early years services are integral parts of a community, especially in regional, rural and remote settings. Not only are they providing the first years of formal education for children but often provide wrap around services for kids and support for the entire family and community. Philanthropic funding is a pathway for organisations (on their own or as part of place-based initiatives) to resource and build strategies for their communities. This session will dig deeper into a real case study of how diversifying funding, including philanthropy, allowed Jarjum Centre to reach its objectives. We will dig deeper into what philanthropy is, where and how to find it and a reality check of what's available and what is expected if you go down this path.

Presented by Rachel Kerry, Margot Beach and Maurita Cavavough

a time to thrive

www.ccsa.org.au/rrf